In the 7th month this year, Henry Casson, innkeeper and chandler, died, aged about 55 years. He left a widow, and five sons, and one daughter. He got Jonathan Cawson, an attorney, to draw his will, who had more sense than integrity or solidity to make a will. Henry Casson had been a facetious and sociable companion over a quart of ale, as was his said clerk, --and, it was supposed, that he took the notes of it in intervals, so as to forget the preceding clauses; so that in the whole it was so confused that no man of the...
