Reviews

Thorough information! Its this type of great go through. It is amongst the most incredible publication i actually have read through. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

Pulse and respiration not quite so quick. 21st. We had a better night--much more quiet, and some sleep; collected; has taken broth and jelly pretty plentifully; no relief from the bowels, nor sickness, but the prostration is extreme. There was a coldness over the face this morning, followed by heat; but this afternoon the respiration is not so laborious. Pulse 120. If it were not for the fear of sickness, I should certainly give the quinine again, and really think I shall try it. 22nd. I visited her this evening at 6 o'clock. Lying on her back; respiration 45. Pulse 120. Conscious, but scarcely able to speak. Had a rigor last evening, but none this morning, and is now warm, with slight moisture on the face. Mouth dry, and tongue parched. No relief from the bowels or sickness. Has taken broth and port wine, and I urged the freest possible use of the latter, with the addition occasionally of steel wine. 24th. The sad intelligence comes at last. My dear wife gradually declined till 4 o'clock this afternoon, when death closed the scene. Case 20.--July 14th, 1858. Mrs. W., ret. 23 years, a delicate and somewhat nervous person, confined with her first child seven days ago. Natural labour. Healthy living child. Was sleepless during the first two nights, and had been frightened by the nurse; lochia continuing properly, and milk secreted; but as she became irritable and restless,...
